This seminar is aimed at discussing various safety measures which are required to be taken in a sugar factory keeping in view the processing conditions. A sugar factory employs many unit operations from sugarcane handling to sugar production which also include generation of power and its export. Safety measures are required to be taken not only while undertaking mechanical, electrical or civil jobs but also during handling of chemicals and those required to be adopted for safe working.

Some mishaps which occurred in some of the sugar factories have made this issue all the more important for discussion and implementation. During the seminar, presentations will be made by eminent experts from various reputed organizations on subject matter.
